ProMark just as important as lighting and power

Manufacturing and industrial companies are experiencing increasing international competition from countries with lower labour costs.

In this context, more companies can learn from Norwegian GKN Aerospace and Aker Solutions Subsea who use ProMark to achieve maximum productivity and profitability in their production processes.

Here, they explain how they use ProMark for collecting production data and how they use the data actively for more realistic production planning in SAP.

Among other things, one of the companies considers efficient data collection in the production processes to be just as important as lighting and power in order to compete internationally.

Get an attractive offer on exchanging your old terminals!

Are your terminals the old kind with only two text rows?

Then you could get some considerable advantages exchanging them for new terminals.

The main new features with our modern terminal is that it is web-based so it can be configured from another location (and supported from our Customer Care support centre), the firmware can be updated and its network connection is much more stable. In addition, it has a colour touch-screen for easy and intuitive registration.

There are no specific issues in relation to the old terminals, but if you are interested, we can give you an attractive offer on the exchange of your old terminals with new ones.

You may even have different needs at the different terminal locations so it might be worth considering other interfaces than the terminal. Today we offer a much wider range of ways to communicate with ProMark than just 5 years ago.

Have a chat with your Account Manager about your options and learn how we may help you update your technology.
